Social Work Month: Compassion Fatigue

This Social Work month, we are recognizing and applauding the vital support and care provided by social workers, while also acknowledging the challenges that come with that work. Taking care of others in their times of need can create compassion fatigue.

The Do's for Managing Compassion Fatigue

- Take time off to fill your bucket
- Find someone to talk to
- Understand that the pain you feel is normal
- Exercise and eat properly
- Get sleep
- Develop interests outside of healthcare

The Dont's for Managing Compassion Fatigue

- Look for a new job, buy a car, get a divorce or make other drastic life changes
- Fall into the habit of complaining to colleagues
- Blame others
- Work harder and longer
- Self-medicate
- Neglect your own needs and interests

CNS Social Workers Provide Support to Patients, Caregivers, and Referral Partners

At CNS, we are proud to have a team of highly skilled, professional social workers who are available to help with a variety of needs, including:

- Medicaid Applications
- Emotional Support to Patients & Families
- Goals of Care Discussions
- Connections to Community Resources
- Respite Placement to Support Family Caregivers

BLM SEEKS INPUT FOR JUNE 2026 SALE OF OIL & GAS LEASES IN UTAH

The Bureau of Land Management opened a 30-day public comment period to receive public input on plans to include 39 oil and gas parcels totaling 54,114 acres in Utah in a June 2026 sale. The comment period ends March 30, 2026.

The BLM completed scoping on these parcels in January 2026 and is now seeking public comment on the parcels and related environmental analysis. The BLM will use input from the public to help complete its review of each parcel.

Leasing is the first step in the process to develop federal oil and gas resources. Before development operations can begin, an operator must submit an application for permit to drill detailing development plans. The BLM reviews applications for permits to drill, posts them for public review, conducts an environmental analysis and coordinates with state partners and stakeholders.

All parcels that are included in a federal oil and gas lease sale include appropriate stipulations to protect important natural resources. Information on current and upcoming BLM leases is available through the National Fluid Lease Sale System. BLM lease sales are held online through EnergyNet.

The parcels BLM is analyzing, as well as maps and instructions on how to comment, are available on the BLM's ePlanning website at: <https://eplanning.blm.gov/Project-Home/?id=6fad61fa-a7f2-f011-8407-001dd80bcf93>.

CITY OF MOAB

REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL RFP No. 26-03 Vehicle Manufacturer Sponsorship

The City of Moab (the "City") is home to world-famous four-wheeling, off-roading, mountain biking, hiking, and whitewater rafting expeditions due to its breathtaking red rock canyon terrain.

The City is seeking proposals from road-legal 4WD vehicle manufacturers for sponsorship of certain City events, improvements, and initiatives.

Proposals must be received by no later than 2:00 p.m. on April 7, 2026, local time in Moab, Utah.

Proposals shall be submitted in electronic format through the Utah Public Procurement website. <https://utah.bonfirehub.com>.

Inquiries to the City requesting clarification regarding any aspect of this RFP must be made via e-mail and must be received prior to the end of the business day on Friday, April 3, 2026.

Michael Black, City Manager
mblack@moabcity.gov

The City is a mecca for outdoor recreation, but best known for its four-wheeling, and off-roading events and trails. In 1967, the Moab Chamber of Commerce hosted the first "Easter Jeep Safari," an event for four-wheeling enthusiasts to explore trails of Moab with their off-roading vehicles of all makes and models. Today, that event has grown into a nine-day extravaganza, attended by thousands of visitors and regional locals alike. With the growth of Moab's four-wheeling tourism and other nationally renowned outdoor recreation, so too has Moab's needs for public improvements, affordable housing, environmental protection, equipment, and infrastructure.

Purpose of RFP:

The City seeks sponsorship proposals from vehicle manufacturers who value the national treasures of Moab and desire to financially contribute to the City's future. The selected vehicle manufacturer will participate in a two-year pilot program, providing funding assistance or in-kind contributions to support City needs, services, and initiatives in exchange for naming and sponsorship rights. Possible naming and sponsorship opportunities include the selected vehicle manufacturer obtaining rights to sponsor City events, naming rights for certain City facilities, and potentially the right to be the "Official 4WD of Moab," subject to applicable laws and regulations.

Benefits of Sponsorship: The successful respondent will become the City's official "Sponsor" for a period of two (2) years. Subject to all applicable legal requirements and limitations, the City's Sponsor will have the right to use the City's name and logo in the Sponsor's promotional materials, advertisements, and other marketing domains. Further, the City's Sponsor will be provided other publicity opportunities with participation in promotional events, outdoor recreation and preservation campaigns, and other media engagements.

The foregoing rights can position the City's Sponsor as a leader in four-wheeling technologies, can expose the Sponsor's brand to a cross-section of demographic, geographic, and lifestyle market segments, can assist in building engaging community relationships and positive associations through events, experiences, and traditions.

The Moab name and logo may also potentially drive sales for a new or existing business, increase corporate community engagement, and influence consumer perceptions.

CASTLE VALLEY DRIVE CONTINUES TO BE CLOSED for a culvert replacement project.

The road will be closed 24/7 at Rimrock and at 394 Castle Valley Drive while crews remove the existing culvert and install a large-capacity arch culvert. The town of Castle Valley secured federal grant funding for the project, which addresses a failing culvert.

Detour: Traffic will be routed up Castleton Road to Fire Station 1 (at the cattle guard), through the connector to Shafer Lane, then back up Shafer Lane to Castle Valley Drive. Drivers should obey the 15 mph speed limit on Shafer Lane.

The Town will post weekly updates via email, the Town website, and the Castle Valley Facebook Community page. Questions or concerns can be directed to the Town Clerk at townclerk@castlevalleyutah.com or (435) 259-9828.

Vehicle Restrictions: Due to road angles, culvert and cattle guard weight capacities, an overhead lines through the Shafer connector, the detour has the following limits:

- 35-foot trailer length limit
- 14.6-foot height limit
- No vehicles or trailers over 20 tons
- No cement trucks or trucks hauling heavy equipment.

Exceptions may be considered with a Sheriff escort through the Shafer connector. Contact Castle Valley Road Manager Dorje Honer at dorjeh@castlevalleyutah.com or (385) 228-0600.

LAND USE & DEVELOPMENT MANAGEMENT CODE REWRITE

Grand County, Utah (the "County") invites qualified planning and land use consulting firms ("Proposers") to submit proposals to comprehensively rewrite the Grand County Land Use Code (the "Code"). The County seeks a modern, clear, internally consistent, and legally defensible land use code that implements the County's General Plan, supports predictable development outcomes, and is tailored to the County's unique rural, resort, and environmental context.

The rewritten Code shall improve usability for staff, elected officials, applicants, and the public; align with the current Utah State Code; and reflect best practices in contemporary land use regulation while remaining practical for a rural county with limited administrative capacity.

Proposals shall be submitted electronically to the U3P Portal at utah.bonfirehub.com by the March 20, 2026

Questions concerning this RFP shall be submitted to the Public Q+A section of the U3P Portal.

Proposals Due: March 20, 2026, 4:00 pm
Interviews (if needed): March 26, 2026
Notice of Award: April 7, 2026, 8:00 pm

ARCHES TIMED ENTRY

TIMED-ENTRY: Why the Future of Parks & Gateway Communities Isn't Either/Or

When the National Park Service announced that Arches National Park won't require timed-entry reservations for 2026, the reaction followed a familiar script. Without timed-entry, the alternative is long lines of cars, no parking, and degraded resources. The coverage framed the decision as a choice between two extremes: manage visitors by turning them away, or let the park be overwhelmed.

That framing misses the point.

In Grand County, we've spent the past year asking a different question — not whether to manage visitation, but how. And the answer we've arrived at is that the tools available to us in 2026 are dramatically better than the tools available when these parks were first planned. We should be using them.

A FALSE BINARY

The conversation about park access has been stuck in a loop. We either restrict entry through a reservation system or accept overcrowding and poor experience as the cost of access. This framing forces a zero-sum conclusion that protecting resources and welcoming visitors are mutually exclusive goals. They are not. This closed loop has precluded modern solutions to legacy challenges that other organizations encounter every day. Outside that loop, there are a number of modern solutions to explore.

Shuttle systems, real-time technology, redesigned trail networks in previously disturbed areas and roads, modernized entrance infrastructure, and data-driven management can accomplish what reservations and limits as the only interventions cannot. These solutions don't just limit demand. They expand capacity, improve the experience, reflect modern multi-modal preferences of visitors over cars, and distribute visitors in ways that reduce pressure on the most sensitive areas of the park while keeping the gate open.

This is the foundation of Grand County's Access and Capacity Enhancement (ACE) Alternative, a proposal presented to federal and state leadership in December 2025. The ACE Alternative is not a reaction to a reservation system. It is a blueprint for how a 21st-century park and a 21st-century community can grow together. It wasn't designed to overstep park authority or propose solutions or dictate approaches outside its authority, but as an invitation to open that closed loop.

PEOPLE AND PLACE

Gateway communities like Moab didn't spring up by coincidence. They exist because the federal government designated extraordinary landscapes in remote regions, and visitors traveled great distances to see them. Those visitors needed food, fuel, lodging, and guides. Over generations, entire economies and outdoor cultures formed around the relationship between these communities and these public lands.

That relationship is not a liability. It is a resource. And one that is now inextricably interconnected.

In Grand County, over 80% of our economy depends on tourism, and approximately 70% of local jobs are connected to park visitation. The regional visitor economy generates $1.8 billion in spending. These aren't just business statistics. They describe a community whose identity, livelihood, and way of life are shaped by what happens at the entrance to a national park.

When Arches thrives, our community thrives. When visitors have a great experience, they stay longer, spend more, and come back. When the park is well-managed and its resources are pristine, the next generation inherits the same opportunity. These outcomes reinforce one another. Protecting the economy and protecting the park are not at odds. They are, and always have been, the same work.

The road into Moab at night — where the park and the community meet.

A PLAN, NOT A POSITION

What sets Grand County apart in this conversation isn't opposing timed-entry. It's that we're proposing a different way of exploring challenges in its place. The ACE Alternative proposes a modernized management approach informed by visitor data, an alternative to car-centric infrastructure design, new trail networks in disturbed areas offering high-density experiences and high-solitude wilderness, voluntary shuttle systems, automated entry technology, and a real-time data platform shared between the park, the state, and the community.

These ideas are practical, scalable, and aligned with where the National Park Service and the Department of the Interior are already heading.

Arches' visitors themselves support this direction. In the NPS's 2021 Visitor Spending and Experience Study — conducted during the highest visitation period in the park's history — 72% of visitors supported a voluntary shuttle, 65% supported expanded trails, 53% supported expanded parking, and 89% agreed the park's natural resources were in pristine condition. Modern visitors are telling us they want more ways to access the park, not fewer. And they believe the park can accommodate it while fulfilling its mandate to protect this extraordinary resource for future generations.

THE WORK AHEAD

This week's announcement is one step. Grand County is encouraging more conversations and deeper dialogue and is committed to working with the National Park Service and the State of Utah to implement forward-looking solutions that serve this generation and those that follow. We believe the best days for Arches, for Moab, and for the visitors who travel from around the world to experience this landscape are still ahead.

The future of public lands doesn't have to be either/or. It can be both. And with the right tools, the right partnerships, and the right plan, it will be.

ESSENTIAL AIR SERVICE

CHOOSING OUR NEXT FLIGHT PARTNER

www.grandcountyutah.net/1373/Air-Service-Carrier-Selection

How Grand County's Airport Subcommittee evaluated four air carriers —and why the recommendation is SkyWest Airlines

Every four years, the federal government asks a consequential question about small communities like ours: Who should fly here?

The answer shapes more than flight schedules. It determines whether a Moab family can book a single ticket to visit relatives in Philadelphia. Whether a resort manager in Moab can rebook a stranded guest during a Denver snowstorm. Whether the outdoor recreation economy that sustains Grand County can keep growing, or watch visitors drive in from Grand Junction instead.

This year, as a result of the intentional and engaged efforts of Airport Director Steve Gleason and the evaluation work of our independent aviation consultant Luke Schmidt, Canyonlands Regional Airport received four competitive proposals for our next Essential Air Service cycle. The Commission's Airport Subcommittee has reviewed each one and voted unanimously to recommend SkyWest Airlines.

But the process isn't over. The Airport Board meets on Monday, March 16, to hear directly from Schmidt and Gleason, review the proposals, and vote on their own recommendation. The full County Commission then votes Tuesday, March 17, on which proposal to send to the U.S. Department of Transportation as Grand County's recommendation, which makes the final selection.

Here's what residents should know about what's being decided, why it matters, and how the subcommittee arrived at its recommendation.

What Is Essential Air Service, and Why Does Moab Have It?

Essential Air Service is a federal program stemming from airline deregulation in 1978. When Congress green-lit airlines to fly wherever the market demanded, lawmakers recognized that small communities would lose service overnight—places too small to be profitable but too important to abandon. EAS guarantees that communities like Moab maintain a basic level of commercial air service, subsidized by the federal government.

Canyonlands Regional Airport has been an EAS/AEAS community for years. The program subsidizes a carrier to operate flights that the open market alone wouldn't support. Every four years, the Department of Transportation reopens the contract and invites carriers to submit proposals. The local community's recommendation carries significant weight in DOT's decision, which is why this process is so important.

The federal government is stepping in to subsidize our air connection to the world. Our job is to choose wisely.

Four Carriers, Four Different Visions

Four airlines submitted proposals, each offering a distinct approach to serving Moab:

SkyWest Airlines is the largest regional airline in America, operating over 2,200 daily flights as Delta Connection and United Express. Their proposal offers dual-hub service to both Salt Lake City and Denver, full codeshare integration with Delta and United, and a per-passenger subsidy of $199.86—the lowest of the four. SkyWest served Moab previously, and during that period, the airport saw record enplanements.

Denver Air Connection proposes Denver-only service under FAA Part 121 standards with interline agreements on American, United, and Delta. They distinguished themselves with strong employee benefits commitments and competitive pricing, requesting a $256.50 per-passenger subsidy.

Contour Airlines is the current carrier serving Canyonlands, offering both Salt Lake City and Denver routes. They are known for low point-to-point fares and flexible scheduling. Their proposal operates under Part 135 standards with a $229.89 per-passenger subsidy.

Advanced Air LLC is the only carrier proposing Phoenix service, paired with Denver. They operate under Part 135 and hold an ARGUS Platinum safety rating with an Alaska Airlines interline agreement. Their per-passenger subsidy of $299.39 is the highest of the four.

Each proposal has genuine strengths. This isn't a case of one good option and three bad ones. It's a case of weighing which strengths matter most for Grand County's future.

The Word You'll Keep Hearing: Codeshare

If you've followed this conversation at all, you've probably heard the term codeshare. It came up repeatedly in community surveys. It was the first word mentioned in the subcommittee meeting. And it's the single feature that most clearly distinguishes SkyWest from the other three proposals.

So what does it actually mean?

When a carrier has a codeshare agreement with a major airline like Delta or United, your regional flight operates under that airline's brand. You book it on Delta.com. You earn SkyMiles on the flight from Moab. If you're connecting through Salt Lake City to Chicago, you have one confirmation number, your bags are checked through to O'Hare, show up in the app, and if a snowstorm delays your connection, Delta rebooks you automatically at no charge.

Without codeshare, you're booking separate tickets. You land in Denver, you may need to claim your bags, go back through security, recheck your luggage, and if something goes wrong, you'll work with the air service provider, not the airline. For a quick Moab-to-Denver hop, that may not matter. For a family flying to see grandparents in Florida, it could mean the difference between a smooth travel day and a logistical challenge.

An interline agreement—which Denver Air Connection and Advanced Air offer—falls somewhere in between. You can book connecting flights, but the integration is looser: bags may need rechecking, rebooking protection is limited, and frequent-flyer credit may be partial.

Depending on your needs, residents can disagree about how much this matters. If you mostly fly short hops to Denver and value the lowest possible fare, codeshare may not be your top priority. But for the majority of travelers who connect through hubs to reach destinations beyond—and for the tourism industry that depends on visitors being able to book Moab as easily as any other destination—codeshare is foundational.

Canyonlands Regional Airport

What the Numbers Tell Us

Sometimes the most persuasive argument isn't an argument at all. It's just a graph.

In 2021, under SkyWest's codeshare service, Canyonlands Regional Airport recorded 20,093 enplanements—a record. When service transitioned to a non-codeshare carrier, that number dropped to 10,625 by 2024. That's a 47 percent decline.

The passengers didn't disappear. Many of them simply started driving in from Grand Junction. An independent leakage study estimated that between 21,000 and 44,000 passengers per year are "leaking" from our market, choosing to drive almost two hours rather than fly from Moab.

Every one of those passengers represents a choice. And that choice, made thousands of times a year, ripples through our economy in hotel nights not booked, in restaurants not visited, in a tax base that could provide more services and amenities.

The community survey results align with the data. When residents were asked, in surveys and focus groups, what mattered most to them in air service, the top responses were, in order, Salt Lake City service, SkyWest, Denver service, and codeshare. The independent consultant, Luke Schmidt, reached the same conclusion: SkyWest first, Denver Air Connection second, Contour third.

A Note on Safety Standards

Two of the four carriers, SkyWest and Denver Air Connection, operate under FAA Part 121, the same standard that governs Delta, United, and American. Part 121 requires two pilots on every flight, FAA-certified dispatchers monitoring operations in real time, a formal Safety Management System, and mandatory on-time performance reporting to the Department of Transportation.

Contour and Advanced Air operate under Part 135, the commuter standard. Part 135 is FAA-regulated and safe, but with fewer redundancies—it allows for different crew configurations and doesn't require the same dispatcher oversight.

This doesn't mean Part 135 carriers are unsafe. It means Part 121 carriers have more layers of protection and more seats. For residents weighing their options, it's a distinction worth understanding.

The Honest Tradeoffs

Good decision-making requires acknowledging what you're giving up, not just what you're gaining. The subcommittee discussed two concerns about SkyWest openly.

Pricing. Codeshare fares can be higher on short segments. A Moab-to-Denver ticket booked through United may cost more than the same route booked directly with an independent carrier. One Commissioner raised this point during the subcommittee meeting, noting that they'd been comparing fares across markets. The tradeoff is real. For simple point-to-point flights, independent carriers can sometimes be cheaper.

SkyWest's departure. SkyWest previously served Moab and withdrew due to pandemic impacts. That history creates understandable criticism. Several community members raised it. The subcommittee raised it directly.

SkyWest's leadership responded to this concern directly with Airport Director Steve Gleason, stating they are "looking not just to return to Moab but to establish a permanent home here." The four-year EAS contract provides a federal framework that didn't exist in the previous arrangement, adding a layer of structural commitment.

Will that be enough? That's a fair question. But it's also worth asking the inverse: what is the cost of not choosing the carrier that best positions us for growth, out of fear that they might leave again?

A Foundational Partner, Not Just a Flight Schedule

One phrase from the subcommittee meeting captures the philosophy behind this recommendation better than any data point.

"We're looking for a foundational partner, so we're not restarting every three or four years. We need stability for growth."

That word—foundational—is doing a lot of work. It means choosing a carrier not just for today's schedule, but for tomorrow's growth. A carrier that brings 20,000 passengers brings leverage to negotiate better schedules, to justify additional routes, and to attract the kind of investment that compounds over time.

SkyWest doesn't just bring flights. They bring Delta's and United's global distribution systems, which put Moab in front of every travel agent and booking engine in the world. They bring seamless connectivity that makes CNY as easy to book as any major airport. They bring a track record of generating demand in our market that no other carrier has matched.

This is what the subcommittee weighed. Not just which carrier is cheapest or most familiar, but which carrier gives Canyonlands Regional Airport the strongest foundation for the next four years and beyond.

What Happens Next

Monday, March 16—The Airport Board meets to review all four proposals with consultant Luke Schmidt and Airport Director Steve Gleason. The board will hear the subcommittee's recommendation, ask questions, and vote on its own recommendation.

Tuesday, March 17—The full Grand County Commission considers the Airport Board's recommendation alongside the subcommittee's and their own independent review of the proposals, and votes on which carrier to recommend to the Department of Transportation.

After the Commission vote—Grand County's recommendation will be submitted to DOT. The federal government then has a 30-day public comment period before making its final selection.

The Airport Board Meeting and County Commission meetings are public, and residents are welcome to attend both. This is your air service. Your needs matter in shaping it. Whatever the outcome, this has been a process focused on choosing the best possible partner for our community's future air service.
